Welcome to BEA2014! Welcome back to everyone who has been to BEA before and a special welcome to newcomers—we hope this will be the first of many more BEA conventions to come for you. BEA is, as we say, “Educating for Tomorrow’s Media,” and I think you’ll find our spotlight this year, New Connections: Mobile and Global, is on target with issues we all need to be addressing in our scholarship and pedagogy.

Have you experienced the reaction when you tell someone you’re going to a convention in Las Vegas? “Oh really? I bet you’ll have a lot of fun there.” Well, I bet you will too—but not because, in your spare time, you might enjoy some of what this unique place has to offer, but because we have lined up for you another great BEA conference.

Great sessions start us off on Sunday, including the 2014 Research Symposium: Digital Technology and the Future of Broadcasting: A Global Perspective, sessions presented by Magid Generational Strategies and PromaxBDA, and our Opening Night Awards Ceremony and Reception. Monday, don’t miss the Division MegaMeeting and breakfast, a unique Scholar to Scholar poster session—where you can interact with posters with your mobile device—and the BEA Best of Festival King Foundation Awards Ceremony. Tuesday’s highlights include District Meetings and ‘newcomers welcome’ breakfast, The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences Foundation Presents: Coffee With….Mike Schur (Co-Creator and Executive Producer of Parks and Recreation and Brooklyn Nine-Nine), and a special two-part documentary workshop. Wednesday includes the NABEF/BEA Career Fair and ‘BEA2014 Tours the NAB Show Floor. There are so many more great sessions, and of course a good variety of panels and research presentations related to our convention spotlight and other contemporary issues of our discipline. So pull out your mobile device, look through the program, and get your choices scheduled using the SCHED app.

BEA is the preeminent society addressing issues of higher education in electronic media and connecting to the electronic media industry for the benefit of our students. Special thanks for giving us that status go to Heather Birks and her extraordinary leadership as Executive Director along with her staff Traci Bailey and J-D Boyle, but also to each of the individuals who take on volunteer roles as your board members, division chairs and vice-chairs, research chairs, festival chairs and all the other roles filled by your peers to make BEA an invaluable resource to all of us.

Finally, of course, also be sure to walk through the exhibits and look at some books for your courses. You’ll have a chance there to catch up with old friends, or to stop by the BEA Registration Desk with any questions you may have. So, click ‘like’ … and get to interacting. I have no doubt you’ll go home with great experiences to share, about BEA2014.

Race and Gender in Electronic Media: Challenges and Opportunities

Issues of race and gender have been hardy perennials throughout the history of electronic media, remaining on the forefront during the period of rapid evolution we currently experience. This symposium will feature research examining the consequences, implications, and opportunities associated with issues of diversity in the electronic media. The symposium will consider race and gender issues in both historical and contemporary (including newly emerging) electronic media (see focal points below). Papers may reflect the intersection of race and gender, or intersections of either race or gender with other types of difference such as class, religion, and physical abilities or qualities.

Symposium Chair: Rebecca Ann Lind, University of Illinois at Chicago

Paper Competition Information…

The BEA 2015 Research Symposium will begin accepting faculty and student submissions for its paper competition in July 2014.

All methods and paradigms are welcome – social scientific, humanistic, historical, critical/cultural, etc. You will be asked to indicate which of the three focal points the paper best reflects:

- MEDIA CONTENT (focusing most closely on texts created by media organizations)
- MEDIA AUDIENCES (including media usage, effects of media, audience interpretations of media content, and studies of user-generated content)
- MEDIA PRODUCTION (including studies of media organizations and the creation of content, as well as media activism, access, policy, and regulation).

Student Paper Competition prizes…

- First place: $300
- Second place: $200
- Third place: $100

Authors of selected papers are expected to register for and attend BEA to present their paper; in the case of multiple authors, at least one must attend. Student papers must be authored solely by students.

Submission Deadline: December 1, 2014

2014 Research Symposium Chair:  John V. Pavlik, Rutgers University
Digital technology is fundamentally reshaping broadcasting in the U.S. and around the world. This symposium features both domestic and international research examining the consequences and implications of technological change for broadcasting. Questions to be considered include what is the impact of digital technology on: 1) the structure of broadcasting organizations and regulation, 2) the nature of broadcast content or programming and how it is delivered at home and abroad, 3) engagement and interaction of the public with broadcasting and social and mobile media, and 4) the reshaping of revenue models for broadcasters in the U.S. and globally. Winners present their research from the Symposium's paper competition during this session.
For the full details of the Research Symposium sessions, please see the listing under the corresponding time in this program.
9:00 AM – 10:15 AM | SESSION I: Introduction and Symposium Paper Competition

Conference Room 1
[Law & Policy | History]
The Federal Communications Commission is prohibited from determining broadcast content before the fact (prior restraint). However, beginning with the 1927 Radio Act broadcasters were held responsible for content due to the scarcity of frequencies and past abuses by broadcasters. How do past and present cases serve to guide future efforts by the government to influence electronic media content? Who can and should best determine content: Government, market forces or the media?
Moderator:  Frank Aycock, Appalachian State University
Panelists:  Lionel Grady, Southern Utah University;  A History of Section 315 and the Fight of the Daly/Daley’s
David Spiceland, Appalachian State University;  The Mayflower Doctrine and the Acceleration of Government Content Regulation

New Media's Impact on the Social Television Experience: Community Responses to News Involving Cancellations and Firings [Session ID: 210286]
Conference Room 5/6
[Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]
Social television has become prominent in the field of entertainment media, with practitioners and researchers alike endeavoring to learn how producers can make new connections with viewers by harnessing the power of social media and the “third screen” to increase viewer support and engagement. This panel adds to this discussion by considering audience engagement that was not sought out by the content creators: fan reactions to show cancellations or the re-casting of key characters.
Moderator: Richard D. Waters, University of San Francisco
Panelists: Jessalynn Strauss, Elon University
Lauren Bratslavsky, University of Oregon
Natlie T. J. Tindall, Georgia State University

Sports Journalism and Production: Models for Providing Sports Focused Experiential Learning [Session ID: 212153]
Pavilion 3
[Sports]
Students interested in producing and covering sports have been a strong subset of students in mass communication and journalism programs. Faculty have developed strategies to provide experiential opportunities for sports-minded students in their programs. Immersion approaches within the classroom, co-curricular partnerships inside the university and partnerships with external sports organizations have all been successful. The panel will discuss the sports initiatives that provide experiential learning for students at their institutions.
Moderator: Ken Creech, Professor, Butler University
Panelists: Christine Taylor, Butler University; Sports Initiatives Within the College of Communication and Through External Partnerships in Indianapolis
Suzy Smith, Ball State University; Immersion initiatives Which Allow Students to cover events like Spring Training and the Olympics as Part of their class experience

How Broadcast Media Stays Relevant in a Changing Global Environment [Session ID: 212196]
Conference Room 4
[News]
Academic media professionals must stay relevant in our ever-changing broadcast environment. We must ensure we not so enamored with today’s technology that we diminish the foundational skills and professional values that prepare students for the world beyond traditional and “new” media. What we teach lays a foundation for making students relevant across all disciplines whether or not they hold a camera, microphone, punch a switcher or write a web story.

A Peer-Reviewed Assessment System For Faculty Led Sports Productions: A Proposal [Session ID: 211990]

Pavilion 11
[Sports]
This panel explores a proposal for the establishment of a peer-reviewed system for faculty led sports productions. The goal of the panel is to explain the specifics of the proposal, seek suggestions for additional elements that may be needed in the proposal and secure volunteers to serve as possible reviewers for faculty led sports productions.

Moderator: Rick Sykes, Central Michigan University
Panelist: Denise Belafonte Young, Lynn University

Out and On-Air: Openly Gay TV News Professionals with Real World Advice [Session ID: 212190]

Conference Room 1
[News | Multicultural Studies]
What does it mean to be openly gay and on-air in television news today? A panel of professional anchors and reporters will pull from their experiences to offer helpful advice to gay and lesbian student journalists and their teachers. The panelists will discuss how they maintain balance and credibility when covering issues that impact the gay and lesbian community. In addition, they’ll explore strategies for coping with disapproving viewers.

Moderator: Michael Riecke, SUNY – Oswego
Panelists: Michael Benny, WTVH-TV
Brandon Jacobsen, CBS News
Anthony Adornato, Ithaca College

Researching the Fantasy Sports User [Session ID: 212159]

Conference Room 2/3
[Research | Sports]
Scholarly interest in fantasy sports continues to grow, as evidenced by the increased number of journal articles, books, and conference presentations aimed at understanding this form of mediated sports. This panel will examine how traditional and not-so-traditional methods and research techniques have been brought to bear in studying this media consumer. Moreover, panelists will also discuss unique challenges of employing surveys, interviews, eye-tracking and other methods to understand this online behavior.

Moderator: Andrew Billings, University of Alabama
Panelists: Glenn Cummins, Texas Tech University
Brody Ruihley, University of Cincinnati

Conference Room 4
[Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]
In a global and connected world, the written word is still a powerful teaching and learning tool, but how is the nature and form of the textbook changing given the proliferation of laptops, tablets and smart phones in the classroom? This year’s Curriculum Swapshop focuses on new textbook forms and alternatives to the traditional textbook. Panelists will share their experiences with course packs, custom workbooks, online readings, instructor created material, ebooks and more.

Moderator: Jes Therkelsen, California State University, Fresno
Panelists: Paul Hemenway, Lamar University; Custom Workbook, Take 1: Publish A Course Workbook Yourself, and Save (Time, Money, Effort)!
Melissa Richie, Tennessee State University; The Class Website, Take 1: Everything Goes Online

How Utah Journalists Helped Create New Access Rules for Video Cameras and Other Digital Tools Inside State Trial Courts [Session ID: 212193]

Pavilion 1
[Law & Policy | Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]

Utah has been stuck in the dark ages when it comes to camera access to Utah's trial courts. For decades, only still cameras were allowed in trials, even high-profile ones. Utah courtrooms were consistently ranked among the least accessible in the United States. That all changed dramatically in April 2013 when new rules began to allow television cameras, radio recording equipment and personal electronic devices—laptops, smartphones, tablets and so on—in trial court proceedings. That is unless a judge has a good reason to ban any or all of those devices beforehand. The story of how journalists and First Amendment attorneys convinced the Utah Judiciary to become a leader on access and also how Utah broadcast journalists are providing self-governing rules and implementation is an important one. It also provides a model to help convince other state court administrators that moving to access-friendly policies benefits the public and court operation. It would also review how the courts and news organizations are using technology to coordinate coverage.

Moderator: Edward Carter, Brigham Young University
Panelists: Joel Jay Campbell, Brigham Young University
          Chad Curtis, Brigham Young University
          Jeffrey J. Hunt, Utah Media Attorney, Parr Brown Gee & Loveless
          Nancy Volmer, Public Information Office, Utah State Courts

International Voices: The Past, Present and Future of State-Sponsored Broadcasting [Session ID: 212117]

Pavilion 2
[History | International]

The panel examines state-sponsored broadcasting operations like Voice of America, Radio Free Europe and Radio Marti. Did these operations effectively communicate to foreign audiences? If so, are the characteristics that made them effective still relevant today? Are there any lessons we learned from broadcasting that can be transferred to today’s environment?

Moderator: Thomas Christie, University of Texas – Arlington
Panelists: Thomas Christie, University of Texas – Arlington
          Daniel Christopher Walsh, Appalachian State University
          Andrew Clark, University of Texas – Arlington
          Richard Vincent, Indiana State University

“The Plurals” the Next “Big” Generation [Session ID: 220722]

Pavilion 3
[All Convention]

A major change is headed to your campus next year. Are you ready? The 2014-2015 academic year will hold your last Millennial freshman class, which means recruiting and admissions will be working with a very different generation of youth. Meet the Plurals, members of the Pluralist Generation, and learn how their distinct mindsets and relationship with their parents will impact your university.

The PITCH Session: Tell Your Story Idea to an Industry Professional! [Session ID: 209627]

Pavilion 10
[Writing]

Many wonderful stories and scripts go unproduced because the author or originator has not or can not make a convincing oral summary (or "pitch") of its value, appeal, and marketability to a producer or agent. In this annual panel, we encourage student winners of the Writing Division's Scriptwriting Competition and others to "pitch" their story to industry professionals, who will evaluate the "pitch" and their script's merit in the current marketplace.

Moderator: Micheal McAlexander, Frostburg State University
Panelists: Matthew Horwitz, Echo Lake Entertainment

"Please Quote Me!" [Session ID: 212037]

Conference Room 1
[Research | News]

Many small and medium colleges can’t seem to get placement in national publications. That billing usually goes to the bigger ones with national reputations. The small ones desire national visibility but advertising is too expensive so all they can hope for is to get recognized in the press by either placing a news story, which is very difficult, or to have its professors quoted. The panel will explore and explain how these opportunities are put together. There are marketing communications firms that work closely with small/medium colleges to get their professors quoted (as experts) in their specialty areas.

Moderator: Kenneth Fischer, University of Oklahoma
Panelists: Doug Spero, Meredith College
Scott Willyerd, Dick Jones Communications
Valerie Alhart, University of Rochester

Management & Programming: How to Face the Challenges Posed by the New Media Environment in Acquiring and Maintaining Audiences [Session ID: 210941]

Conference Room 2/3
[Management, Marketing & Programming]

This panel examines how the new media environment (i.e., DVR’s, mobile viewing platforms, internet services, remotes, etc.) are creating serious challenges to the traditional broadcast and cable entities, in terms of acquiring and keeping audiences and, hence, advertisers and revenue. Panelists will also present ways that such entities are reacting and successfully dealing with such challenges.

Moderator: Mitchell Shapiro, University of Miami
Panelists: Patricia Williamson, Central Michigan University; Teaching the Next Generation of Radio Programmers: Current and Future Challenges
Alan Albarran, University of North Texas; Network Programming & Distribution: Managerial and Economic Considerations
Mitchell Shapiro, University of Miami; Patterns of Network Program Scheduling in the Era of the DVR and Remote Control

Don’t Wait for Them to Come to You, You Can Go to Them: International Travel and Study Abroad [Session ID: 212104]

Conference Room 4
[International | Multicultural Studies]

This session will discuss and explore the benefits of studying abroad - with attention paid to both faculty and student participation. Panelists share destinations, how they amassed the number of students needed to make the trip, their field experiences, and the model their universities use to offer financial support for faculty and students. There is a saying, “If you build it, they will come.” Don’t wait for the international community to come to American students, send American students to their communities.

Which Is More Vital To Production Classes: Teaching Content or Technology? [Session ID: 211984]
Pavilion 1
[Production Aesthetics & Criticism | Writing]
Our digital production students can't create quality projects without a firm grasp of camera and editing technology. And yet without a solid background in quality videos to emulate, they can't create meaningful films, documentaries, or news reports. As modern technology becomes more complex, what's the right ratio in teaching historical and theoretical content versus teaching technology in a classroom?

Thinking Outside the Box: A Look Back at Significant Broadcast Programming Events [Session ID: 212119]
Pavilion 2
[History | Management Marketing & Programming]
Radio and TV programming has always changed with the times. This panel will look at some significant events that brought about programming changes. Sometimes change was implemented because of an emerging technology or a legal decision. Other times, it was simply an awareness of available audience demographic. In one case, a simple executive decision saved a medium from extinction. Each panel member will review an event that occurred because of one of those reasons.

Challenges for Trans-Media Education: Exploring Student Projects in Communication and Visual-Aural Design [Session ID: 212012]

Pavilion 11
[Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies | Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]

How is communication/visual/aural design education impacted by the current conditions of our trans-media state? This panel – composed of presenters from a range of disciplines – will present diverse pedagogic methodologies and examples of projects that demonstrate the transition from a conventional to connected trans-media paradigm. Panelists will discuss their experience within this context and highlight their role as exploratory facilitators between the traditional and new or expanded model.

Moderator: Yoshiko Burke, University of Cincinnati
Panelists: Yvette Shen, University of Utah; From Data to Graphics: Methods and Resources – Teaching Infographics to Communication Students

Closing the Loop: What Our Program Learned and Changed because of Assessment [Session ID: 209737]

Conference Room 2/3
[Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]

For programmatic assessment to be worthwhile, schools need to use the data they have gathered and “close the loop”; that is, apply what they have learned to make their programs better. The participants on this panel come from ACEJMC accredited programs and are Institutional Members of BEA. They have used assessment to their advantage and improved their programs because of it.

This panel will spotlight a number of techniques designed to generate student interest, enthusiasm, and engagement with media research. Breathing life into (often dreaded) research methods courses is a perennial challenge. Yet, knowledge of media research topics, methods, and career opportunities is an essential part of the mission of electronic media programs. Panelists will share exercises, syllabi, and projects that BEA members can take back to their own classrooms to improve student learning.

Diversity in the Screenwriting Industry: Who is Telling Our Stories? [Session ID: 212180]
Pavilion 3
[Writing]
Recent reports on the WGA-West and WGC (Canada) reveal a lack of gender and ethnic diversity in the screenwriting industry across North America. Studies being undertaken European countries show similar results. Screenwriting is a vital form of cultural expression, yet visible minorities, women and older screenwriters continue to be underrepresented. The panel will discuss why there is a disconnect between those who are hired to tell our stories and the diverse populations they represent.

The Official Journals of the Broadcast Education Association

Proudly Published by Routledge

Journal of Broadcasting & Electronic Media

Editor: Zizi Papacharissi, University of Illinois at Chicago

The Journal of Broadcasting & Electronic Media, published quarterly for the BEA, contains timely articles about new developments, trends, and research in electronic media written by academicians, researchers, and other electronic media professionals.

The Journal publishes original research that examines a broad range of issues concerning the electronic media, including historical, technological, economic, legal, policy, cultural, social, and psychological dimensions. Scholarship that extends a historiography, tests theory, or that fosters innovative perspectives on topics of importance to the field is particularly encouraged. The Journal of Broadcasting & Electronic Media is open to a diversity of theoretical paradigms and methodologies.

BEA Division Business MEGA Meeting [Session ID: 255025]

Pavilion 9

BEA is only as strong as its interest divisions and their unprecedented involvement in making the organization run. Come have breakfast and learn more about BEA and 10 of BEA’s 17 specialized interest divisions. Discover how you can participate and be a part of BEA’s planning process. After a short general session, participants will break out into rooms hosted by division leadership.

Speakers: Michael Bruce, University of Alabama

Gender Issues Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219336] – The Gender Issues Division stimulates awareness and discussion of existing issues and problems related to gender concerns in the media and media education; encourages dissemination of information about impact of gender issues to professional colleagues in the field; leads discussion on issues of promotion and tenure related to gender; fosters and promotes the teaching of issues focusing on gender related concerns as a substantive area of study within the disciplines of broadcasting/media.

Chair: Jennifer Meadows, California State University, Chico
Vice Chair: Lisa Pecot-Hebert, DePaul University
Paper Competition Chair: Casey Hart, Stephen F. Austin State University
Communications Manager: Lily Acevado-Callejas

History Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219337] – The History division is concerned with teaching history and conducting scholarship in the field. Members are involved in classroom teaching and in the recording and analysis of historical events relating to the electronic media. Their goals are to encourage and continually improve teaching in the area; to provide a forum for the presentation of original scholarship; to share ideas and resources in the field; and to encourage preservation of historical materials.

Chair: Stephen Perry, Illinois State University
Newsletter Editor: Gary McIntyre, Mansfield University
Webmaster: Ed Youngblood, Auburn University

International Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219341] – The International Division members are involved in areas such as Telecommunications Business Practices, Comparative Systems of Broadcasting & Journalism, and International Regulatory Practices to name just a few. The division's goals/objectives are to provide a forum for research and discussions on international communication; to provide regular opportunities for members to update their information and skills resulting from changes in the field of international communication; and to encourage the international exchange of faculty and students for purposes of research, teaching and consulting.

Chair: Helena Vanhala, Robert Morris University
Vice Chair: Deborah Wilson, University of Lincoln
Research Paper Chair: Anne MacLennan, York University
Newsletter Editor/Webmaster: Quan Xie, Bradley University

Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219357] – The Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies Division's mission is to keep members informed about the latest advances in communication technology including hardware, teaching and research. Their goals are to address needs of BEA members in teaching courses dealing with Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies; to help us prepare our graduates and ourselves for changes in the media landscape; to provide a forum for presentation and discussion of theory and research on emerging communication technologies; and to keep members of the organization informed about changes in communication technology and how those changes will affect broadcast education.

Chair: Dana Coester, West Virginia University
Vice Chair: Jacob Enfield, California State University-Northridge
Secretary/Treasurer: Gerald Fisher, Biola University
Co-Webmaster: Leigh Wright, Murray State University
Co-Webmaster: Anthony Galvez, Rhode Island University
Festival of Media Arts Faculty Interactive Multimedia Competition co-Chair: Sandy Henry, Drake University

Festival of Media Arts Student Interactive Multimedia Competition co-Chairs: Angele Anderfuren, Northern Arizona University

Law & Policy Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219374] – The Law & Policy Division's mission is to assist fellow teachers, researchers and practitioners in electronic media Law & Policy. Their goals and objectives are to foster ownership of the process of educating potential electronic media leaders and teachers about law; to prepare electronic media students for leadership roles by providing meaning to the phrase "the public interest, convenience and necessity"; to instill the notion of the "public interest" among potential users and leaders of the electronic media; to help new teachers of L & P by initiating and continuing a dialogue about the process of teaching in this area; to

If you didn't get your credentials in the mail, pick them up at the BEA registration desk along with your conference bag and "official" BEA2014 convention program.
foster discussion about the nature of the Curriculum of Law & Policy; to educate potential users about their responsibilities to use the mass media as mechanisms for social change and improvement; and to initiate research into the fields of Law & Policy.

Chair: Marilyn Terzic, Université du Québec à Montréal
Vice Chair/Paper Competition Chair: David Deeley, University of North Florida
Communications Director: Heather Polinsky, Central Michigan University

Management, Marketing and Programming Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219376] – The mission of the Management, Marketing and Programming Division is to (1) enhance the teaching and research of electronic media management, sales and programming, (2) provide a forum for the presentation of juried and non-juried scholarly research in those areas, (3) enhance networking between faculty and management, sales and programming professionals, and to (4) provide a forum for the exchange of effective learning and teaching techniques.

Chair: Tang Tang, The University of Akron
Vice Chair: L. Meghan Mahoney, West Chester University of Pennsylvania
Communication Manager: Miao Guo, Ball State University

Multicultural Studies Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219378] – The Multicultural Studies Division was founded to provide a specific forum for addressing concerns of the relationship between traditionally underrepresented groups—especially racial and ethnic groups (i.e., African, Hispanic, Asian and Native American (ANANA)—and the electronic media. The division also provides a forum for discussion of issues and presentation of research on issues of portrayal, employment and entrepreneurship and the academy's response to teaching these issues. Their goals are to increase the level of awareness of the contributions and concerns of AHANA members and other traditionally underrepresented groups; to encourage more research on topics related to AHANA members and other traditionally underrepresented groups; and to encourage electronic media curricular acknowledgment of the contributions and concerns of AHANA members and other traditionally underrepresented groups.

Chair: Phillip Powell, Valparaiso University
Vice Chair: Chetachi Egwu, Nova Southeastern University
Paper Chair: Victor Evans, Thiel College
Secretary: Mia Kamal, Louisiana State University

Production Aesthetics & Criticism Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219388] – The Production Aesthetics & Criticism Division's purpose is the improvement of teaching and the fostering of research and innovations in audio and video production, aesthetics and criticism. The division provides a forum for the exchange of teaching techniques and material; the presentation of juried and non-juried scholarly research; the presentation of faculty and student productions; the demonstration and discussion of innovations in production equipment and techniques; and as a means of evaluation through juried competition of scholarly research and faculty production. Members are involved in the supervision of the only collegiate, association-wide, peer review faculty production competition, that provides valuable feedback and credibility often needed in promotion and tenure reviews.

Chair: Amy Crawford, Youngstown State University
Vice Chair: Marilyn Terzic, Université du Québec à Montréal
Newsletter Editor/Website Manager: Kara Jolliff Gould, John Brown University
Festival of Media Arts Student Video Competition Co-Chairs: Stephen Price, Georgia College & State University
Amy Crawford, Youngstown State University
Festival of Media Arts Faculty Video Competition Chair: Tony DeMars, Texas A&M University at Commerce

Research Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219396] – The Research Division supports the work of BEA members whose interests include telecommunication research, methodology and interests not served by other divisions. No methodology is excluded. Their goals are to encourage all BEA members interested in research to join the division; to provide forums for discussion on issues in broadcast and electronic media research; and to provide leadership roles in shaping the future of broadcast and electronic media research.

Chair: Glenn Cummins, Texas Tech University
Vice Chair: Thomas Baggerman, Point Park University
Communications: Glenda R. Balas, University of New Mexico
Past Chair: Andy Curran, University of Cincinnati

Writing Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219407] – The mission of the Writing Division is to provide a forum for discussion of issues pertinent to writing for electronic and other media; to develop understanding of media writing and the teaching of writing through scholarly research to be presented at panels and in an annual competition for scholarly papers at the BEA Business Convention; to encourage student writing through an annual, national scriptwriting competition; to encourage creative writing by faculty through an annual, faculty scriptwriting competition; and to maintain a web page with a collection of media writing resources such as syllabi, scripts, grants, competitions and links to other writing resources on the web.

Chair: Michele McAlexander, Frostburg State University
Academic Research & Scholarly Paper Competition Chair: Kevin J. Corbett, Central Michigan University
Newsletter Editor & Webmaster: Edward J. Fink, California State University, Fullerton
Recording Secretary: Mary Beth O'Connor, Purdue University Calumet

Why pursue a Ph.D. in journalism at the University of Kansas?

Financial support for graduate students • One-on-one mentorship of research
Teaching opportunities • Faculty who support students pursuing their research interests

“My goal is to do research that people can actually use, that impacts the industry itself and that actually touches the world. What do students need to know before they go out into the industry? That is what I am thinking about every day, and my faculty support me in doing that.”

The Most Complete Technical and Operational Handbook on the Market Today

TV on Wheels, the 2nd edition of the definitive book about the television production industry on location. This segment of the television industry is known as Remote TV in the U.S., and Outside Broadcasts in most of the rest of the world. The book covers the history, planning, logistics, operations, and technology that comprise this industry and contains over 358 pages and 1200 photos and graphics that provide a detailed tour through this segment of television that is helping to define how media will operate in the future. HD 4K, virtual graphics, and a myriad of other technologies grew to critical mass because of the pioneering work that took place by television done on location.

BEA's Lifetime Achievement in Scholarship recipient Dennis Davis, will consider the myriad changes in media theory and research that have occurred over the 40 years of his career. His review will center around examples drawn from his own research and colleagues with whom he has worked. Davis is Professor Emeritus of Communications in the College of Communications at the Pennsylvania State University. He is currently serving as a Visiting Professor in the Gaylord College of Journalism and Mass Communication at the University of Oklahoma. He holds a B.A. degree from St. Olaf College (1967) and a Ph.D. from the School of Journalism and Mass Communication at the University of Minnesota (1973). He has held administrative positions and served on the faculty at Cleveland State University, Southern Illinois University, the University of North Dakota and the University of Otago in New Zealand. He was editor of the Journal of Broadcasting and Electronic Media from 1994-1997. He was an Associate Editor of the Journal of Communication, a Review and Criticism Editor for Critical Studies in Mass Communication and has served on Editorial Boards for Journal of Communication, Journal of Broadcasting and Electronic Media, Political Communication, and Communication Quarterly. He was a Fulbright Senior Lecturer in the Netherlands and Belgium 1979-1980. His research and teaching interests include new media, political communication, international communication, media theory and research methods. He coauthored Mass Communication Theory: Foundations, Ferment, and Future with Stanley Baran. His research has won the Donald McGannon Award for Social and Ethical Relevance in Communication Policy Research from Fordham University and the Broadcasting Preceptor Award from San Francisco State University. In 2010, he received the Distinguished Educator Award from the Mass Communication and Society Division of Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication.

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in mass communications prepares students for careers in teaching and research in higher education and for research and management positions with mass media organizations.

The Master of Arts (M.A.) is designed primarily for students who wish to continue on for doctoral studies or for a career as a research professional. The M.A. is a traditional academic program involving a minimum of 30 semester hours of course work, including a six-hour thesis. Students entering this degree program usually have significant professional experience.

The Master of Mass Communication (M.M.C.), a 36-hour program, is designed for students who plan a career as a senior-level professional in some aspect of mass communication management. The program focuses on media management, with a special area of emphasis in integrated communications (public relations, advertising and marketing communication). The program includes a semester-long practicum experience working in a mass-media organization.

The Certificate of Graduate Study in Health Communication is an interdisciplinary program involving a minimum of 18 semester hours administered jointly by the school, the Department of Health Promotion, Education and Behavior and the School of Library and Information Science.

The Dual M.M.C./J.D. Degree program is designed for students who intend to become attorneys with a specialization in media law or for students intending to become professionals in the mass media who either anticipate dealing with legal issues or who simply wish to have a legal background. The dual-degree program will allow students to complete both degrees in four years rather than the customary five years if pursuing both degrees separately.

Ohio University’s Collaborative Student Productions with Universities in Malaysia and Nashville, Tennessee [Session ID: 212163]
Pavilion 2
[Production Aesthetics & Criticism]
During 2012-13 Ohio University's School of Media Arts & Studies completed a pair of collaborative student film projects, one in Nashville, TN, with Tennessee State University, a historically black university over 400 miles away, and the other in Shah Alam, Malaysia, with Universiti Teknologi MARA which is more than 9,000 miles away. The ways in which each of these short narrative projects were produced is very appropriate for the conference theme. Ohio University did indeed forge “New Connections” that were both “Mobile and Global.” Portions of the 2 films will be screened and panelists will discuss how they and students from their respective universities worked together on these two 20 minute narratives, one with an all African American cast, the other with an all-Malay cast. The Showcase will include a presentation on how students used Skype, Facebook, and other social media during pre-production to develop scripts, find locations, do casting and raise funds, and will also focus on how these projects addressed cross cultural collaboration and ethnic diversity.
Moderator:  Frederick Lewis, Ohio University
Panelists:  Habibah Ashari, Ohio University/Universiti Teknologi MARA
Melissa Richie, Tennessee State University

Understanding The Complicated World Of Online Advertising [Session ID: 212197]
Pavilion 3
[Management, Marketing & Programming | Research]
Online advertising presents unique opportunities and challenges. How is online advertising performance measured? How can businesses develop effective advertising strategies in the online environment? How can Internet sales people communicate their message to potential clients? How should clients use standard banner ads, rich media banner ads, pre-roll video, homepage takeovers, and peel downs? Join Dennis Prechtl, a media research veteran with more than 25 years of experience, as he helps make sense of the online advertising environment.
Moderator: Paul MacArthur, Utica College
Panelist:  Dennis Prechtl, Manager of Digital Research Strategies, NCC Media; Understanding The Complicated World Of Online Advertising
Clemson University’s Social Media Listening Center provides the data-driven analytics to help you make use of the 150 million daily conversations important to your company, organization or news stories.

Faculty led and student driven, the center offers
• the ability to pull and analyze conversations by topic on Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, LinkedIn, blogs and other online communities;
• superior graphics displayed in HD; and
• streaming data from Salesforce Radian6 software, which captures sentiment, share of voice, trending topics and geo-location metrics.

Teaching Students to Produce in the Digital Age [Session ID: 212081]
Pavilion 10
[Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]
Today’s media producer must make “new connections” with their audience in ways not imagined in the traditional role of a film or television producer. Techniques including: crowd funding; trans-media strategy; search-engine and social marketing engagement; and metric evaluation could make the difference between success and failure for a producer’s project. This panel will explore a variety of practices currently being used to educate students about some of the tools necessary to succeed as producers in the world of emerging media.

Defining the Documentary: Can a Website Be a Documentary? [Session ID: 212083]
Pavilion 11
[Documentary]
‘Defining the Documentary’ is an ongoing series exploring issues concerning the documentary. This year we will ask, "If everything's a documentary, is anything a documentary?" Websites, books, museums? Does a broader definition help us keep up with changes, or does it take away from some 'true' meaning? Following a brief introduction, we will break into small groups, each with its own moderator, and discuss a variety of scenarios – allowing all attendees to participate in the conversation.
Moderator: Evan Johnson, Normandale Community College
Panelists: Thomas Mascaro, Bowling Green State University
Dan Kimbrough, Misericordia University
Michael Ogden, Central Washington University
Christopher Shofner, University of Wisconsin - Stevens Point
The Charles & Lucille King Family Foundation was established in 1988 to support individuals, institutions and organizations committed to educational excellence and professional development. To that end, in addition to the Broadcast Education Association, the Foundation has established several other ongoing grant and scholarship programs. These include:

- The King Family Foundation Undergraduate Scholarship Program, which awards up to $7,000 to junior- and senior-level students majoring in television, film and related fields and who demonstrate academic ability, financial need and professional potential.
- The King Family Foundation/NYU Heinemann Award, an annual $10,000 award given to an outstanding film/video senior undergraduate at New York University.
- The King Family Foundation/USC Post Production Award, an annual $10,000 award toward the completion of an outstanding film/video project by a graduate student in the MFA program at the University of Southern California.
- The King Family Foundation/UCLA Post Production Award, an annual $10,000 award toward the completion of an outstanding film/video project by a graduate student in the MFA program at the University of California, Los Angeles.
- The Michael Collyer Memorial Fellowship in Screenwriting in association with the Writers Guild of America East.
- The King Family Foundation/NYU Post Production Award in honor of the late Roger King, an annual $10,000 award toward the completion of an outstanding film/video project by a graduate student in the MFA program at New York University.

In addition to our educational scholarship and grant programs, the Charles & Lucille King Family Foundation provides substantial support to a variety of public and private charities and is active in support of several media-related educational programs including the NYU First Run Film Festival and the Talking Pictures lecture series at Rowan University.

Addressing the Call for a Better Journalism Education [Session ID: 211908]
Conference Room 1
[Curriculum, Assessment & Administration | Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]
Critics, educators, and journalists have criticized and challenged whether journalism programs can adequately prepare and secure future graduates a job. On April 15, 2013, Tom Rosenstiel provided a framework in which journalism educators could teach both skills and critical thinking to help students understand the extent journalists’ behavior influences society while evolving technologically as well (http://bit.ly/16N4qtC). To best prepare students for the present media landscape, Rosenstiel argued that journalism curriculum should reflect four pillars: 1) the teaching of technological skills, 2) journalism responsibility, 3) the business side of journalism, and 4) the discipline of verification. One year later, each member of the panel including Tom Rosenstiel will address each individual component of Rosenstiel’s new curriculum, which includes how educators can make it happen within their present structure.
Moderator: Serena Carpenter, Michigan State University

Sports Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219399]
Conference Room 2/3
[Sports]
Welcome to BEA’s Sports Division, established in April 2008. For a long time sports wore the tag of the ‘toy store.’ No serious study of the media could include a look at sports. But, times have changed. Academics as well as non-academics have seen that, for better or worse, sports are an essential element of U.S. and worldwide culture. This has led to a surge in academic organizations that recognize and embrace sports as a legitimate intellectual pursuit. A number of academic journals have been developed all devoted to sports, and schools that have sports-related classes, and even majors, are growing in number as we speak.

Broadcasting Identity Through Music [Session ID: 212076]
Conference Room 5/6
[Radio & Audio Media]
This panel presents three different perspectives on the implicit and explicit uses of broadcast music to shape identity. The first is a historical study of efforts to break German morale through broadcasts of sad music during World War II. The second investigates the disparity of gender in current music radio formats. The last is a study of how Korean pop music promotes Asian popular culture.
Moderator: Michael W. Huntsberger, Linfield College
Panelists: Juoak Jade Kim, Temple University; Branding Korean Pop: Cultural Hybridity and the Construction of Asian Identity

College TV & Radio: The Challenges & Triumphs of Smaller Programs [Session ID: 212101]
Pavilion 1
[Student Media Advisors | Two-Year/Small Colleges]
College stations are a great way for students to get that all important hands-on experience in their fields of study. While all student media face challenges, organizations associated with smaller colleges/universities tend to face different issues than their counterparts from larger schools. Faculty/staff often struggle with maintaining student participation, producing consistent content, shortages of resources as well as challenges from administrators. Panelists from smaller programs will share their experiences and offer strategies for overcoming challenges.

The 168 Film Project: A Unique Opportunity for Faculty and Students [Session ID: 212125]
Pavilion 2
[Production Aesthetics & Criticism | Student Media Advisors]
The 168 Film Project invites participants to compete for cash and prizes by producing a narrative or documentary film, based on a theme and a Judeo-Christian scripture. Starting in 2013, the winner receives a production budget of up to $1 million dollars from sponsor Echolight Studios. Films are produced in one week's time (168 hours), offering a crash course in real-world experience for both student and faculty competitors. In this panel, 168 Film Project Founder John David Ware and 168 Board Member Brian Bird (Evening Shade, Touched by An Angel, Gametime) explain the outstanding opportunities offered to competitors in the 168 Film Project. Recent 168 filmmakers and staff members will share their stories of struggle and miracles from the "168" trenches and show some of their outstanding work. Learn all you need to get your students involved in this competitive storytelling opportunity, and to become involved yourself! Panel includes a special appearance by the 2013 168 Film Project grand prize winners.

Wonder Woman Doesn’t Twerk: Gender Depiction and Body Image in Electronic Visual Media [Session ID: 212131]

Pavilion 10
[Gender Issues | Multicultural Studies]

This panel seeks to promote discussion of prevalent and controversial issues related to the way gender is depicted in films, television, advertising, and other forms of visual media. Do content producers feature constructive depictions of female or male gender roles? Are physically unattainable images of beauty perpetuated? Why do producers continue to create such fare? What are the effects, intended or unintended, upon their audiences? This panel will delve into such issues and more.

Showcase site for best work produced by broadcast and multimedia student journalists in the College of Communications.

ComRadio
Online station provides opportunity for hundreds of students each year, providing news, public affairs and sports programming.

Our Philosophy
Recognizing that learning environments are not limited to classrooms, the College of Communications uses an interwoven three-pronged approach to prepare students to enter the professions or graduate school: strong instruction in technique and conceptual courses; extensive on-campus media opportunities; and a vast array of off-campus internships.

Our Facilities
We have 20 state-of-the-art labs in six buildings across campus. Students learn on the same equipment and software used by professionals in the real world.

The College provides
A grounding in skills instruction and professional ethics
More than 600 for-credit internships each year
Communications-specific international opportunities
Special events featuring award-winning professionals

Implementing Transmedia Education Across the Curriculum: Changing the Way we Teach Theory, Production, and Management [Session ID: 212026]

Conference Room 1

[Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]

Transmedia is the process of telling a story across multiple platforms while developing a universe that maximizes revenue through core fan base. As the television, film, video game, and print industries find themselves in a time of reinvention, the transmedia model is one that industry is rapidly adopting. This panel includes discussions from the Rhode Island College faculty along with industry insiders from Yoshi-Carr entertainment and Synchronous Media about rethinking curriculum in mass media programs.

Moderator: Robert Galvez, Rhode Island College

Panelists: Eungjun Min, Rhode Island College; Transmedia’s global and cultural implication: Helping students wade through the theoretical implications

Robin Haislett, Texas Tech University; Playing by the Rules to Write New Rules: Games in Transmedia Storytelling

Robert Galvez, Rhode Island College; The Transmedia Universe: Developing curriculum that that addresses all 3 screens

Social Media: Destroy or Enhance your Credibility as a Journalist in 140 Characters or Less [Session ID: 212166]
Conference Room 4
[News | Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]
I'm sure you all remember the rookie reporter who dropped the F-bomb on the air in April of 2013 on his very first night of anchoring? Well that reporter, A.J. Clemente, was my former student at West Virginia University. Because of social media, his "blunder" went viral with nearly two million hits on YouTube alone. This panel explores how social media can make or break careers in the journalism field. Panelists will share tips and techniques of incorporating social media into their syllabi, classrooms and broadcasts; how to verify sources and information posted on social media sites and how to utilize social media tools to enhance reporting in this emerging new media paradigm.
Moderator: Gina Dahlia, West Virginia University
Panels: Gina Dahlia, West Virginia University
Bob Gould, Michigan State University
Lance Liguez, University of Texas at Arlington
Jeanette Castillo, Ball State University
Gina Baleria, San Francisco State University

1:00 PM – 2:15 PM
The Core of Radio Listening: Making The "Perfect" Station in an Imperfect Market [Session ID: 212038]
Conference Room 5/6
[Radio & Audio Media | Multicultural Studies]
From case studies to retrospectives to re-imaging radio via new technologies, panelists contribute pieces to the larger puzzle: what is core to radio listening? What would the ideal radio station sound like, and how is success determined at the audience and market level? Discussions transition from traditional elements that historically define listening to recent considerations (i.e., increased fragmentation, mobility, rapid technological change, shifts in audience composition and reach) encompassing radio art, innovative practice and emerging communities.
Moderator: Phylis Johnson, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale
Panels: Honna Veerkamp, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale; Feminist Frequencies: Traditional and New Models
Jonathan Pluskota, Northwest Missouri State University; The Perfect Technology: RadioThrives On Mobility
Taehyun Kim, Washington State University; Perfection Re-Imagined: Radio Korea's Next Generation; A Case Study of Cross-ethnic Radio Programming

College Radio Formats: Mixing Music with Talk [Session ID: 212074]
Pavilion 1
[Student Media Advisors | Radio & Audio Media]
The two primary formats of American radio are music and talk. A college/university station (student managed and operated) with a music format can incorporate a talk show format element to highlight localism, increase listenership, and enhance underwriting while providing additional experiences for the station's staff in producing programming driven by current events, campus, and community interests.

Video Production and the "Film Thing": Can We Do it All? [Session ID: 212154]
Pavilion 2
[Two-Year/Small Colleges | Production Aesthetics & Criticism]
Sure, it's all storytelling, but experienced media educators know there is a world of cultural and aesthetic difference between a traditional approach to video production and film-type classes and activities. The demand from students for "film" seems higher than ever, but should smaller programs even try to cater to the market, or should they focus on the niche that best fits their operation, faculty and mission?
Moderator: Randall King, Indiana Wesleyan University
Panelists: Randall King, Indiana Wesleyan University; Do We Market More Than We Can Deliver?

The Road to an "All-Internet Protocol" Telecommunications World [Session ID: 212128]
Pavilion 3
[Law & Policy]
The United States is a 21st century country, with an economy of trillions of dollars powered by amazing technologies and innovations – think computers, high-speed Internet, software and apps and wireless devices. But, despite these technical advances, our nation’s telecommunications system still overly relies on an outdated 20th century technology, consisting largely of copper wiring that harks back to the days of Alexander Graham Bell and rotary telephone dials. Similar to the transformation of American television to digital, the FCC and the Congress now are looking at transitioning telecommunications to an all-IP system. The potential benefits of the IP transition would be tremendous, in terms of economic development, job creation/growth, and consumer welfare. But, how do we get there? AT&T and others have proposed IP transition trials to ensure that consumers and businesses are not negatively affected by the transition. The FCC has set up government advisory committee working group to study and make recommendations on the transition. Barry Umansky and Steve Pociask, the two co-chairs of that working group will join other experts in reviewing the legal, economic, technical and policy issues.
Moderator: Barry Umansky, Ball State University
Panelists: Tim Stelzig, Deputy Chief, Competition Policy Division, Wireline Competition Bureau, Federal Communications Commission
Hank Hultquist, Vice President – Federal Regulatory, AT&T
Steve Pociask, The American Consumer Institute Center for Citizen Research

Student Media Advisors Business Meeting [Session ID: 219400]
Conference Room 1
[Student Media Advisors]

The Student Media Advisors Division's mission is to provide a forum for the person responsible for supervising and/or advising student-operated media outlets. The goals of the division are to stimulate awareness and discussion of existing issues and related problems to student-operated electronic outlets on campuses; to encourage dissemination of information about the impact of student operations to professional colleagues in the field; and to foster and promote the teaching of information connected with the operation of any outlet where students are the primary workforces as a substantive area of the disciplines of broadcasting/media.

Communication Theory: Fifty Years a Critic [Session ID: 220239]
BEA2014 Podium Session: James A. Anderson, Professor of Communication, University of Utah
Conference Room 2/3
[All Convention]

Recent work by Professor James Anderson and his coauthor Michael Middleton has documented the explosive growth in theory development within the field of communication, particularly in the last three decades. A closer look at the character of this growth reveals that most of the theories are short-lived, perhaps averaging a five-year life span and most fading within a decade. This presentation considers the economic forces that drive theory development and the epistemological weaknesses that lead to the cyclical extinction of the theories developed. Dr. Anderson is the author/co-author/editor of seventeen books, including The Organizational Self and Ethical Conduct, Media Violence and Aggression, and Media Research Methods. His more than a hundred book chapters, journal articles, and research monographs are in the areas of family studies, cultural studies, media literacy, organizational studies, communicative ethics, methodology, and epistemology. He is a Fellow and past president of the International Communication Association and was a recipient of the Broadcast Education Association’s 2007 Distinguished Scholar Award. He has been the editor of Communication Yearbook and Communication Theory, associate editor of Human Communication Research, guest editor of Communication Studies and American Behavioral Scientist and an editorial board member of seven other scholarly journals. He has been recognized in the Western States Communication Association as a “Master Teacher” and served a senior Fulbright Fellowship in Austria. He is Director of the Center for Communication and Community at the University of Utah, which is currently conducting studies in health communication, emergency medical processes, social services for the citizen soldier, contemporary public library design, rehabilitation of youth offenders, and technological literacy training for the retired person.

Introduction by:    Robert K. Avery, Professor of Communication, University of Utah

Paid, Unpaid or Credit: How do we handle internships? [Session ID: 212175]
Conference Room 4
[Curriculum Assessment & Administration]

Internships have been critical in broadcast education for many years. But recent events are creating problems. Key issues include internships for pay, for no pay and for academic credit. Should we only give credit for internships when the company follows the strict wage and hour guidelines definition of an internship? Should we change our policies to make it easier for students to pay for internship credit hours? Our panel wishes to explore these questions and more and find out how other universities are handling this critical issue.

AIRCHECK: Making the Most of Your Student Newscast [Session ID: 210470]
Conference Room 5/6
[News]
Many of us are producing newscasts with students. The variables may be different (live/taped, daily/weekly, volunteer/for credit) but the challenge is likely the same. Some of us have found unique or clever ways to work around the problems and get the most for our efforts. In AIRCHECK, we'll show examples, share experiences and solutions, and hopefully send you on your way toward a new and improved news product on your campus.

Sports Broadcasting Showcase [Session ID: 212039]

Conference Room 2/3
[Sports]

This session will feature panelists from several university programs that produce sports programming. The programs may come in the forms of sports segments in radio or television newscasts, weekly shows or specials. The program carriers vary from campus closed circuit to community cable to public broadcasting stations. Some universities have full fledged sports majors while other colleges include sports activities as part of a general broadcast major. The panelists will highlight their programs including how students, staff and faculty are involved in the process. The balancing act of how to both produce quality programing and provide students a positive learning experience at the same time will be discussed. Excerpts will be shared with the audience. The relationship between academics and the Athletic Department will also be considered.

Moderator: Kenneth Fischer, University of Oklahoma

Panelists:

Documentary Division Business Meeting [Session ID: 219329]
Conference Room 1
[Documentary]
The Documentary Division focuses on scholarship, teaching, and creation of documentaries, and radio-TV-Internet delivery of documentary film/video. We seek to expand international documentary literature and illuminate genres, methods, creators, and interpretative/analytical approaches to documentary. Our members share an appreciation for methods of teaching and producing documentaries, including exhibition. Our goal is to be a nexus for media scholars and critics, faculty, and professionals in documentary fields, as well as other associations, festivals, and broadcast organizations that research, produce, and archive documentaries at international, national, regional, and local levels.

Two-Year/Small Colleges Business Meeting [Session ID: 219402]

Pavilion 2
[Two-Year/Small Colleges]

The Two-Year/Small Colleges Division's mission is to provide a forum for issues unique to the teaching and operation of a program of broadcast education at a community college, a small college or in a small broadcasting program. Their goals are to share and propagate teaching strategies; to enhance and promote the teaching of lower division courses in broadcasting; to promote and encourage the transferability of broadcasting courses between institutions; to facilitate the interaction of faculty with broadcasters and media practitioners; to promote the study of broadcasting across academic disciplines; and to promote the use of broadcast facilities to support broadcast education. The 2-year/small college division member faculty, staff and students are employed by or matriculated in a community college or a small college that offers a broadcast related major (such as broadcasting, video production, mass media and communications.) A small college is defined as a college with a broadcast related major/division with an enrollment of fewer than 200 students.

Live, Local and Every Day: How to Do More Student News [Session ID: 212199]

Pavilion 10

[Student Media Advisors]

Many universities have excellent newscasts that are done weekly, and sometimes monthly. But students can become better producers, anchors, reporters and directors if they can practice their skills every day with the same kinds of deadlines they will face in the real world. The panel will include student advisors who execute daily live newscasts. The session will include practical advice for students and faculty ready to take their news product to the next level.

Television Production at the Intersection of Portlandia and Vine [Session ID: 212188]

Pavilion 11

[Production Aesthetics & Criticism]

We are all challenged by the changing nature of communication and the difficulties in teaching television production in an environment that includes the traditional hour-long scripted network program, webisodic content, and six-second Vine videos. How do we determine what course content and techniques are important and viable, and what are the best practices for teaching them? This panel will discuss the challenges they’ve encountered in this new world, one where our students will soon be working, and share how we have addressed them.

The Last Three Hires [Session ID: 212149]

Conference Room 2/3

[News]

Whenever a reporter or a producer is hired, many other applicants are not. What is the secret to a successful job hunt? Is it the resume, the reel, the interview? News Directors will talk about the last three hires they have made and they’ll show us why these three people made the cut. A panel of faculty members will add to the discussion by telling us about their last three hired graduates and what they had that maybe other students lacked.

Educated Uncertainty: Four Perspectives on Teaching the Physics and Romance of TV Technology to Non-Technical Learners [Session ID: 209669]
Pavilion 1
[Management, Marketing & Programming]

The future TV professionals we teach should enter the industry with more than a perfunctory understanding of the technology on which their careers will be based. They should be introduced as early and as often as possible to the “romance” and challenge of moving signals from point A to point B. That romantic vision drove early pioneers to create radio and television at a time when everything had to be built from scratch. It is that vision of the physics and romance behind the technology that motivates today’s engineering and technical personnel with whom our students will someday collaborate, a job they will do better if they have shared, even to some small degree, the challenges of operating and in some cases building a technical apparatus. This panel will address the novel strategies four educators employ to overcome the barrier to learning we are calling “educated uncertainty,” so common among non-technical students.

Moderator: Albert Tedesco, Drexel University
Panelists: Lydia Timmins, University of Delaware
Derrick Savage, Career and Technical Education Teacher, School District of Philadelphia
Rich Paleski, Director of Broadcast Operations and Engineering, WCBS/WLNY New York
Dave S. Culver, Drexel University

Production Companies, Entertainment and Transmedia Studios in Academic Programs: Models, Experiences, Outcomes [Session ID: 212095]

Pavilion 2
[Student Media Advisors | Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]

Many colleges and universities are experimenting with new models for student media organizations involved in creating and distributing content. Traditionally, student media organizations provide opportunities for professional practice, elevate a school's public profile, and engage alumni. As the media and entertainment industries evolve, and embrace developments like transmedia, what new organizational models and partnerships have emerged to benefit students and departments? Advisors of several leading programs discuss their experiences.

Moderator: Phil Hoffman, University of Akron
Panelists: Barbara Doyle, Chapman University, Dodge College of Film and Media Arts

Another Conversation with Dick Wiley [Session ID: 212127]

The Honorable Richard E. Wiley – renowned communications attorney, former FCC Chairman and former head of the government-industry advisory committee that developed the digital television standard for the United States – joins us again at BEA2014. His conversation with Barry Umansky, former Deputy General Counsel of the NAB and now BEA’s
President, will run the gamut of key legal and policy issues for the Congress, FCC regulators, communications industries and the public. Among the timely topics for the conversation are spectrum auctions, the “IP Transition,” retransmission consent, media ownership, content regulation and the relationship among the FCC, the Congress and the courts in shaping and reshaping communications law and policy. Wiley, the recipient of the BEA Law & Policy Division’s inaugural “Lifetime Achievement Award” in 2012, also will answer questions from the audience and also join in conferring the second BEA Law and Policy Division “Lifetime Achievement Award” to Stuart Brotman.

Moderator: Barry Umansky, Ball State University
Featured Guest: The Honorable Richard E. Wiley, Wiley Rein, LLP
Coffee break sponsored by the Digital Policy Institute immediately following the session.

11:45 AM – 1:00 PM
Current Issues in Law & Policy [Session ID: 212126]

This longest continuously-offered convention session in BEA history again this year looks at a wide range of important legal and policy issues. These are issues being addressed by Congress, the Administration, the FCC and other agencies, as well as in the courts, the states and in academia. Representatives of the federal government and industry trade associations, plus leading communications law and technical experts, will provide attendees with insights and answers on key topics relating to electronic communications and media. Barry Umansky, BEA’s Vice President for Academic Relations and former Deputy General Counsel of the NAB, will moderate the session and pose questions to panelists. We’ll cover issues relevant to the “mobile and global” convention theme, such as broadband spectrum auctions/reallocation, the wireless and wired internet protocol transition, net neutrality and global approaches to privacy, copyright and security. The session also will look at the “new” FCC and other important communications law and media law issues confronting legal practitioners and policymakers.
Following commentary by the expert panel, session attendees will be able to pose their own questions to the presenters.

Moderator: Barry Umansky, Ball State University
Panelists: Barbara Kreisman, Chief, Media Services Division, Media Bureau, FCC
Peter Doyle, Chief, Audio Services Division, Media Bureau, FCC

Social Media Use in the Arab World
[Session ID: 211983]

Pavilion 10
[International]

In the past few years social media have been used in a wide variety of ways in the Arab region, whether to rally people around social causes and political campaigns, boost citizen journalism and civic participation, create a forum for debate and interaction between governments and their communities, or to enhance innovation and collaboration within government. For example, The Dubai School of Government’s July 2012 report entitled “Social Media in the Arab World: Influencing Societal and Cultural Change” provides a comprehensive review of social media use in the Middle East. The document includes several charts reflecting survey results. One chart notes that 75 percent of Saudi Arabs and 71 percent of Emiratis believe that their contribution to society has increased through using social networking tools. This panel explores how social media are being used in some Arab world countries and what impact they have on the people and institutions.

The Retransmission Consent Wars – Any Peace Signs, or Just Escalation?
[Session ID: 212160]

Pavilion 11
[Law & Policy]

TV broadcasters’ retransmission consent option for cable carriage has been in the law for over two decades. But, in recent years we’ve seen highly publicized “games of chicken” waged between station owners and multichannel video providers. The frequent result has been a standoff lasting as long as a month, resulting in viewers being unable to access broadcast programming from one warring party over the multichannel system of another in the battle. Broadcasters, cable operators and satellite providers are adopting strategies and arguments to help advance their respective interests, with government regulators and the public giving close attention to the wars and the skirmishes. Now many in Congress want to enact retransmission consent reform. Some proposals would give the FCC the power to end the blackouts. Other proposals are more far-reaching. Hear all sides in an informative session featuring policy experts and representatives of those in the battles.

Connecting Interdisciplinary Learning: Team Teaching Broadcast Multimedia Commercial Production for Integrated Marketing Communication [Session ID: 212035]
Pavilion 9
[Management, Marketing & Programming]
The focus of this session is on cross-disciplinary team teaching broadcast production. Presentation and discussion will be based on the collaboration of a documentary film production instructor and an advertising and public relations assistant professor to team teach courses. Panelists will discuss syllabus development, leadership style, assignment planning, in-class management, evaluation procedures, office hours and other coordination that is never a consideration when teaching alone. Efforts will highlight the team teaching design, experiential learning characteristics and unique teaching practices and how these attempted to improve student learning outcomes. Student productions, including several that received awards in national and regional contests, will be showcased, and will illustrate the variety of video/digital platforms used in marketing communication, including :30 and :60 commercials, invitation videos and longer format trade show videos supporting profit and nonprofit organizations. Learning and insights from student surveys will be part of the presentation and instructors will offer reflections for how experiences improved their teaching, helped them connect with colleagues and how helps students to bridge the gap between the academy and industry.

[Documentary | Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies]
Sheila Curran Bernard is an Emmy and George Foster Peabody Award-winning writer, filmmaker, and educator with expertise in both drama and documentary, especially work that uses the tools of creative writing to enhance the rigor as well as the appeal of nonfiction media. She has played a leading role in creating and overseeing projects for national and international broadcast, theatrical release, and museum and classroom use—work that is often strategically leveraged to enhance impact through the development of components for education and outreach/public engagement. She is the author of Documentary Storytelling, now in its third edition and widely translated; co-author with Kenn Rabin of Archival Storytelling; and a consultant and collaborator on documentary companion publications. Ms. Bernard has worked with major networks and production companies, among them Discovery, IMAX, Lifetime, Maysles Films, and PBS. Her works are a testament to diversity and social justice.
Ms. Bernard will present and discuss clips of her works to explain her approach to documentary, nonfiction storytelling in Slavery by Another Name (PBS, 2012); Bad Blood: A Cautionary Tale (theatrical release, 2010; PBS, 2011); and several signature collaborations with Henry Hampton’s Blackside Inc., including Eyes on the Prize II, This Far by Faith: African-American Spiritual Journeys, and I’ll Make Me a World: A Century of African-American Art, and her strategies for teaching documentary storytelling as a means of enhancing media literacy.

Visual Media and Critical Pedagogy: Classroom Strategies, Student Learning, and Assessment [Session ID: 212151]
Conference Room 1
[Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]

Lectures and term papers are not the only way to teach. In fact, a growing body of research suggests that asking students to produce visual documents (e.g., infographics, concept maps, comic strips, photographic memes) is an effective way to encourage mastery complex concepts and critical thinking skills. Inviting students to articulate new ideas visually can foreground relationships between new and pre-existing knowledge. Research supports the development of teaching and assessment strategies that incorporate the visual. This is consistent with a critical pedagogy that addresses the student as more than an empty receptacle for authoritative and unchallengeable knowledge.

Spectrum Auctions – Dollars, Decisions and Dilemmas [Session ID: 212162]
Conference Room 4
[Law & Policy]

What’s at stake for broadcasters, telecommunications carriers, the government and the public as we get closer to the FCC’s “forward and reverse” auctions for current broadcast spectrum? Will the timetables hold? What levels of monetary reimbursement are expected – and needed – for a successful process? What about spectrum “repacking” and the service areas of individual TV broadcast stations, regardless of whether they participate at all in the auction process? Will broadcasters and wireless carriers be able to agree on contour prediction software? Who will be the winners and losers? And by how much? Can this auction process really work and yield the government’s desired result? These and more questions will be answered by a panel comprised of communications law and policy experts.

Broadcasting from the Antarctic: The Second Byrd Expedition [Session ID: 212136]
Pavilion 3
[History]
Early Arctic and Antarctic explorers took along film and photography professionals to document their expeditions. In the mid-1920s, the effort to communicate by radio or shortwave with Arctic explorers began. Then in 1933, the first full-scale effort to broadcast for the public began from the Antarctic. The Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition transmitted via Shortwave radio over 10,000 miles to CBS in New York who then aired a 30-minute program once per week to their listening audience. The broadcast was both a vehicle through which the expedition was supported and a public relations blitz to ensure public support for Byrd’s Antarctic Exploits. General Foods, through their Grape Nuts Cereal product sponsored the broadcasts and provided large quantities of the cereal for the expedition. They benefited through the use of in-store displays connecting their product with the program and urging listeners to mail in box tops for premium gifts. A newspaper was printed in four editions during the expedition called the South Pole Radio News, and was used to encourage listening and to supplement the information heard on the program.

Your College Radio Station: Launching, Programming, Promoting and Recruiting! – PART II [Session ID: 212200]

Pavilion 11
[Radio & Audio Media]

If you have recently started a college radio station, are now in charge of a college radio station, need recruitment tips, looking to make a splash in your community with a killer promotion, or you want to make some changes to your programming, this panel will address several questions: Where do you begin with determining programming? How do you recruit your students and maintain a staff? How can you utilize technology to assist you in running your radio station while recruiting/training students? What are some of your basic policies and procedures for radio station staff? (Feel to bring copies of your own station’s handbooks, training documents or policy manuals!) What are some promotions (both on- and off-air) that have worked for you? We’ll share some cost-effective ones that have worked amazingly at scores of other radio stations across the country! Panelists will answer these questions and discuss their own experiences. Bring your questions, ideas, and best practices to share! You’ll walk away with a notebook full of practical ideas ready to implement at your station as soon as you get home!

Moderator: Albert Kim, Manchester Community College
Panelists: Thomas J. Vesci, Asnuntuck Community College
Nick Martinez, San Jose State University

9:00 AM – 10:15 AM

Pitfalls and Pratfalls [Session ID: 212007]

Conference Room 1
[Curriculum Assessment & Administration]

This panel of experienced administrators from R/TV/Film/Communication departments and schools will speak about their experiences in dealing with the dynamic field of electronic media and the challenges it presents to college and university programs. Topics addressed will include faculty evaluation, assessment, rapid curricular change, economic and budgetary shortfalls and successes, fundraising, technological changes and the resulting need for hardware, software, cameras, TV Studios, etc. This is “must attend” panel for any past, current or future department chairs, school directors, or deans. The topics covered by panelists will be the kinds of issues that arise every year that must be dealt with by the unit administrators.

Moderator: Norm Medoff, Northern Arizona University
Panelists:
Edward J. Fink, California State University, Fullerton
Alan Albarran, University of North Texas
Jon Stahl, California State University @ Northridge
Peter Gershon, Hofstra University

From Competition to Collaboration: Cultivating convergence in student news media [Session ID: 211626]

Conference Room 4
[News]

In collegiate journalism as in the professional news media, cultural obstacles as well as physical barriers have impeded convergence. Now, led by a blended curriculum, students and faculty alike are on board at Ball State University. The student-run newspaper and television newscast have moved into the same newsroom. They are collaborating on coverage, sharing resources and pooling efforts on a single website. I’ll explore how we managed to get here and what comes next.

Moderator: Phil Bremen, Ball State University
Panelists:
Michael Spillman, Ball State University
Eric Schumacher, Eastern Illinois University
9:00 AM – 10:15 AM
New Connections: Using Your Internet Radio Station to Create Local Content for a Global Audience
(Session ID: 211975)
Conference Room 5/6
[Radio & Audio Media | International]

This panel explores how university Internet radio stations are creating connections between their immediate community and around the world. Topics include a partnership where an exchange student hosted a show that aired on stations in the U.S. and England; how a station is showcasing international artists receiving little or no airplay in the US; the use of a station as a tool for service learning.

Moderator: Andrew Clark, University of Texas – Arlington
Panelists: Tom Ingram, University of Texas - Arlington; Using your Internet Radio Station as a Tool to Aid Service Learning
Lance Liguez, University of Texas - Arlington; Giving International Artists Exposure to the U.S. on Internet Radio
Bradford Yates, University of West Georgia; Andrew David, University of Lincoln; Shawn Isaacs, University of West Georgia; Creating a Global Partnership Between Stations in the the USA and England

9:00 AM – 10:15 AM
Structuring a Participatory Audience: Locating Synthesis and Integration in Communication and Technology Research
(Session ID: 212165)
Pavilion 1
[Interactive Media & Emerging Technologies | Research]

Emerging technologies transform increasing power to media users. However, individuals continue to function within structures of time, cost, and resources. This panel aims to bring scholars’ attention to an often-overlooked aspect in communication and technology research – structure. This panel will examine interactive media use and impacts from a structural view. Panelists argue that structures are not fixed, but active and multidimensional. Different conceptualizations of structure will be addressed.

Moderator: Philip Thompsen, West Chester University
Panelists: Roger Cooper, Ohio University; Conceptualizing “Group” in Multi-Platform Structures: Findings from Big-Event Sports
L. Meghan Mahoney, West Chester University of Pennsylvania; Opportunities and Challenges of Emergency Medical Records: An Investigation of Usability, Infrastructure and Impact
Kathryn E. Cooper, The Ohio State University; Seeking Balance between “Old” and “New”: Empowering New Media Persuasion through Traditional Message Structures
Tang Tang, University of Akron and Brandon T. Sweitzer, University of Akron; Guiding a Participatory Audience: Understanding the Role of Social Media Structures

9:00 AM – 10:15 AM
Your Student Media Operation and the Job Market
(Session ID: 212090)
Pavilion 2
[Student Media Advisors | Curriculum Assessment & Administration]

This panel examines the role a school’s student media operation can play, in conjunction with its academic program, in job placement in a communication profession or the media industry. This panel considers the student media’s impact on the student in job training, professional contacts, exposure to professional standards and methods for getting that internship or first job through participation in a campus student media operation.

Moderator: W. Dale Hoskins, Northern Arizona University
Panelists: Paul A. Creasman, Arizona Christian University; The Student Media Operation and Internship Placement
David Garrity, Gonzaga University; Your Student Media Operation as the Student's First Professional Experience
Phyllis Slocum, University of North Texas; The Student Media Operation's Role in Job Placement
Evan Wirig, Grossmont College; Your Student Media Operation: The Resume and Audition Tape
Respondent: Chad J. Roberts, Central Michigan University

ASC's Cinematography Workshop
(Session ID: 220314)
Pavilion 10
[Documentary]

The ASC’s annual Cinematography Workshop will explore the opportunities of filmmaking with today's ground-breaking technology. In conjunction with the American Society of Cinematographers, this workshop provides an intimate setting to introduce you to this year’s guest, Dean Cundey, ASC. Cundey’s work includes such films as: Apollo 13, Jurassic Park, Hook, Halloween, Escape from New York and the Back to The Future trilogy.
New Connections: Mobile & Global

9:00 AM – 10:15 AM
The Framing of Black and Brown childhood in the mobile Twittersphere [Session ID: 212206]
Pavilion 11
[Multicultural Studies]

As mobile technology plays a larger role in everyday life, web applications have adapted. As such one can tweet from their mobile device from anywhere, and say anything. As such the attacks on black and brown children that were once reserved for snide commentary behind backs have gained a permanent place in modern culture, e.g. Twitter and Facebook comments about Quavanzhane Wallis, Trayvon Martin and the Hunger Games movie.

Moderator: Maria Williams-Hawkins, Ball State University
Panelists: Rockell Brown Burton, Texas Southern University

10:00 AM – 3:00 PM
NABEF/BEA Annual Career Day
BEA Exhibit Hall
[All Convention]

Each year we partner with the NAB Education Foundation (NABEF) to host the spring NAB Show Career Fair. Don't miss the largest career fair in the broadcast industry! Our goal is to match high-quality candidates to potential employers from major broadcasting companies such as CBS News, Cumulus Media, CNN/ Turner Broadcasting, NBC, Star Radio Group, ESPN, Beasley Broadcasting, and more. Those that should attend are experienced professionals looking to advance their broadcasting career, college students, entry-level job seekers interested in a career in the broadcast industry, or faculty looking to make connections for their students. In addition to a variety of media recruiters, Career Day includes a series of informative sessions and one-on-one career coaching.

10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Flipped, Blended or Hybrid: The Use of Emerging Technologies in Large and Small Classrooms [Session ID: 212086]
Conference Room 1
[Curriculum Assessment & Administration]

Online materials for blended learning require technological skills and different strategic views than those normally used for lectures. Ideally, these materials should offer engaging and interactive learning experiences. All of this comes with the requirements of increased preparation time and a new set of resources to help faculty create this content. Panelists will discuss their classroom strategies and discuss whether all courses are suitable for blended learning content.

Moderator: Dana Lee, Ryerson University
Panelists: Dana Lee, Ryerson University
Thomas McHardy, James Madison University
Philip Thompson, West Chester University
Max Utsler, University of Kansas

10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Platform Diving: Springboarding Students towards a Multimedia Model [Session ID: 212077]
Conference Room 4
[Two-Year/Small Colleges]

After Florida Southern College went through three different web sites in three years, building readership for its college news website - even motivating student media staff to participate - has been a challenge. Learn what's worked (getting staff buy-in and giving them a sense of ownership), what didn't (limited CMS access) and how you can apply these lessons to get your staff and readers involved and excited.

Moderator: William Allen, Florida Southern College
Panelists: Mike Trice, Florida Southern College
William Allen, Florida Southern College
10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Censorship Around the World [Session ID: 211900]
Conference Room 5/6
[Law & Policy]
In terms of the public interest, censorship is constantly changing, and in order to prepare students, educators need to know current standards and practices. Censorship changes have occurred in both broadcast and cable; advocacy groups have changed their tactics; the audience has become more involved in censorship issues; and the international market makes requires people to be increasingly aware of different standards for censorship in different parts of the world.
Moderator: Andi Stein, California State University, Fullerton
Panelists: Carol Ames, California State University, Fullerton
David Grannis, California Lutheran University
Dave Collins, Woodbury University
Philippe Perebinossoff, California State University, Fullerton

10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Pavilion 1
[Radio & Audio Media]
It was not very long after Frank Conrad’s KDKA began broadcasting on November 2, 1920, that sports and radio fell in love with one another. Listening to blow-by-blow accounts of heavyweight prize fights and hearing the scores of the World Series were just the start of an ongoing relationship that has sustained itself for nearly a century. Internet radio and other online content providers are the latest chaperones for sports and radio. This panel will discuss how colleges and universities can capitalize on the long-term commitment between sports and radio through Internet-only radio stations and other online outlets.
Moderator: Bradford Yates, University of West Georgia
Panelists: Shawn Isaacs, University of West Georgia
Lance Liguez, University of Texas – Arlington
Joe Carter, University of Texas – Arlington
John Wright, University of Florida

10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Advancing Sports Media Research: Trends in Publishing and Areas for Future Investigation [Session ID: 209545]
Pavilion 2
[Sports | Research]
This panel brings together a wealth of collective experience publishing in the area of sports media. The panelists will first explore the current status of sports media research before articulating (a) current trends in publishing [journal articles, books, and beyond] and (b) avenues for future scholarly investigation [with an eye toward new, social, mobile, and convergence media.]
Moderator: John McGuire, Oklahoma State University
Panelists: Lawrence Wenner, Loyola Marymount University
Walter Gantz, Indiana University
Andrew Billings, University of Alabama
Respondent: Marie Hardin, Penn State University
10:30 AM – 11:45 AM
Get me a job! Integrating professional training initiatives into your academic program. [Session ID: 210050]
Pavilion 11
[Production Aesthetics & Criticism]

Even with a college degree, many graduates struggle to find their first job in television, film, or radio. The problem? No professional experience. This panel discusses unique ways [beyond typical internships] to integrate professional experiences into your academic program. Hear how other colleges and universities have implemented unique approaches to training broadcast students to give them professional experience before leaving the institution. This panel includes insight from Goshen College professors and professionals who have incorporated an award-winning professional video production company named ‘FiveCore Media’ and an award-winning FCC licensed radio station [91.1 The Globe] into the broadcasting program. Both programs open students to professional work while in college and have led to increased graduate success and to a number of state and national awards.

Moderator: Seth Conley, Goshen College
Panelists: Kyle Hufford, Goshen College
Jason Samuel, Goshen College
Tim Underhill, Ball State University

12:00 PM – 1:15 PM
The Give and Go: The Ohio Valley Conference’s Attempt to Establish New Connections and How It Can Benefit Curricula and/or Students [Session ID: 212092]
Conference Room 1
[Curriculum Assessment & Administration | Sports]

College athletic conferences attempt to make new connections for self-promotion. The Ohio Valley Conference established the OVC Digital Network to make mobile and global connections for conference-promotions. Some of the universities in the OVC have used this as an opportunity to enhance their curricula and students’ experiences in and/or out of the classroom. This panel will share the methods and challenges in this pursuit.

Moderator: Sheryl Morris, Tennessee State University
Panelists: John W. Taylor, Eastern Kentucky University
Joseph Richie, Tennessee State University

12:00 PM – 1:15 PM
Modern Family: Mediated Depictions of Family Structures and Gender Roles [Session ID: 212152]
Conference Room 4
[Gender Issues]

This panel examines the evolving way the American family is depicted in the media. This includes television dramas, sitcoms, reality television shows and advertisements. Specific topics include changing family structure and definition (e.g. depiction of polygamist families and same-sex couples in television programs) as well as evolving gender roles and expectations (e.g. the domesticated dad and modern mom). Ultimately, the panel will explore the interconnected relationship between the American family and its mediated depiction.

Moderator: Casey Hart, Stephen F. Austin State University
Panelists: Casey Hart, Stephen F. Austin State University; Depictions of Dads in Advertisements
Catherine Luther, University of Tennessee @ Knoxville and Renee Smith, University of Tennessee; Representations of Same-Sex Parenting
T. Phillip Madison, Stephen F. Austin State University; Depictions of Polygamist Families in Television
Lyn Lepre, Marist College; Depictions of the ‘Modern Mom’

12:00 PM – 1:15 PM
When Disaster Strikes, We Keep Teaching - A Case Study of Surviving Fire in the TV Studio and What to Expect if it Happens to You [Session ID: 212129]
Conference Room 5/6
[Two-Year/Small Colleges | Student Media Advisors]

After final studio productions on December 8, 2012 smoke was discovered in the TV control room at Tarrant County College. Fire consumed the studio and the building was a total loss. Thirty days later faculty and staff nearly had temporary studios ready for spring classes but they were still undergoing fire, insurance and criminal investigations. Learn what to expect and how to better prepare your facilities, records, program and yourself for disaster.

Moderator: Adrian Neely, Tarrant County College
Panelist: Jerry Zumwalt, Tarrant County College
12:00 PM – 1:15 PM
The Dark Side of Teaching: A Case Study of Violence in the Classroom [Session ID: 212100]

Pavilion 1
[Writing | Curriculum, Assessment & Administration]

This follow-up to the past two year's "The Dark Side of Teaching: Whatever Happened to Classroom Civility?" theme will continue our examination of this issue, focusing on violence in the classroom. Experienced teachers and administrators will lead the audience in an interactive, directed analysis of real-life classroom cases of incivility run amok, with the aim of identifying causes, suggesting solutions, and proposing preventatives. Not a vent session; come prepared to contribute to positive outcomes!

Moderator: Mary Beth O'Connor, Purdue University Calumet
Panelists: Carey Martin, Liberty University
Yueqi Zhang, Purdue University Calumet

12:00 PM – 1:15 PM
Social Media and Global News Coverage: Incorporating International Stories into Campus Newscasts Using Research Skills at Your Fingertips [Session ID: 212111]

Pavilion 2
[International | News]

Students need to realize the importance of incorporating international stories into their campus newscasts. This panel discusses several ways of doing this while utilizing social media to hunt down leads and investigate details on global stories. College students can turn their Twitter accounts into a research tool along with other key sites like MuckRack and Storify. They can learn to keep their fingers on the pulse of world news using social media to complement traditional sources.

Moderator: Grace Provenzano, San Francisco State University
Panelists: Wanda Johnson-Stokes, Clemson University; Where in the World Did That Story Come From? Merging International News into Newscasts
Grace Provenzano, San Francisco State University; Raising News Awareness through Social Platforms: Helping Students Discover Political Stories that Matter Using Mobile Media
Vera Walker Hawkins, Texas Southern University; Student Coverage of Everyday Life in Global Communities: How Three Texas Southern University Students Frame Events and Share them With Their Campus Community While Traveling Abroad in Africa and Asia
Teresa Puente, Columbia College Chicago; Using Social Media to Connect to the World: One-Credit Course Modules Connect Students to Communities at Home and Abroad

1:30 PM – 2:45 PM
